T. Thompson assistant professor.

Professor Wm. Cain graduated at Hillsboro, N. C., Military Academy
when Col. C. C. Tew, of South Carolina, was its Superintendent. After that he pursued his studies further, making himself a thorough mathematician and practical engineer. He has been engagd in work on railroads and bridges i this State for a number of years, and af ter his service of six years in the Carolina Military Institute as professor of mathe-matics and engineering, he returned to his profession of engineering a year or two ago. He is now at the head of an im-portant railroad survey in North Carolina. He is thoroughly versed in the the-ory and practice of his profession, and there is no able mathematician or more accomplished engineer in the South. He is an author and frequent contributor to scientific journals in the line of his pro-fession, and is considered a leading think er in that department, even in the scien-tific circles of the North. He is a Chris tian gentleman, a military man, with their word that the contract will be car-military training and instinct, and at the ried out under the consolidation. Dispace with the strides of science in this age of rapid advancement.

Mr. Thompson is a son of the Hon. Hugh S. Thompson, the candidate for Governor. He has had charge of the Dar-lington Male Academy for two years past, and has developed a fine capacity as a teacher and disciplinarian. He is 23 years old, and was educated at the Male Academy in Columbia and at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.
The beard considered a large number of (about 149) applications for beneficiary cadetships, and passed a good many of them. These examinations were directed to the complicants with the general requirements as to physical condition, age and pecuniary circumstances, the idea being to carry out what was conceived to be the spirit of the law, that is, to extend the beneficiary aid only to those who both deserve and need it. Where there was reasonable ground to suppose that the parents of the applicant had means to educate him the application was disapproved. The approval of the application for beneficiary cadetship by the board gave the applicant the privilege to go before an examining board that will sit in each county.

About forty applications for pay cadet-ships were examined and approved. It sings were examined and approved. It is expected to open the Academy with 150 cadets on the first of October. Applications for pay cadetships should be made to the chairman of the board at once, the sooner the better.

The following is a list of the professors of the Academy: Col. J. P. Thomas, superintendent; Capt. Wm. Cain, professor; First Lieut, P. P. Mazyek, as-Thompson, assistant professor; First Lieut, H. T. Thompson, assistant professor; Dr. F. L. Parker, surgeon.—Correspondence News and Courier.

Love Marred by Breeches.

"I had rather an amusing love affair myself in Texas, which I should like to tell you if you will not feel bored with my long anecdotes," said the New York man, tarowing away his stump of cigar.
"I was staying at a ranch on the Rio Grande and fell in love, or thought I had fell in love, with a beautiful little damsel who resided with her father at a small hacienda twenty miles away. I was the possessor of a new pair of 'uckskin breeches which I had purchased in New Orleans, but I had hitherto never worn. One morning I put them on. They fitted perfectly, and I was so delighted with the appearance of my nether limbs that I determined to pay a visit to Donna Isabella. When half way on my ride it began to rain in torrents and my heads. gan to rain in torrents, and my breeches began to stretch and the stretching continued until they hung half a dozen inches below my boot heels. I arrived in the young lady's presence in rather a worse looking condition than that of the drownded rat. However, she received me kindly and conducted me to the kitchen, where a roaring fire was blazing.

I sat talking to her while my clothes were drying, and was too much occupied to think about my new breeches, when my love-making was cut short by the an-nouncement of supper. I gave my arm to the Donna and entered the next room. We were greeted with shouts of laughter from a large company of men and women who were scated at the table. I glanced downward and my eyes fell on the cause of their mirth. My breeches had shrunk with the heat until they had rolled above my knees, leaving a wide space of bare flesh between them and my spaces. A love for the asthetic did not flourish in those days, at least not in Mexico, and I was glad to hide my legs under the table, and for the rest of the it does not take half so long to make a evening, I wrapped a mantilla around my limbs. I was too uncomfortable to resume my love-making to Isabella; be-sides, she laughed whenever she looked at me. I slept there that night in a wide meadow. Thinking the fresh air would restore my breeches to their nor mal condition I took them off and spread them on the grass, and then jumped back through the window and went to bed.

In the morning I arose early and looked for the cherished garments. A dreadful sight met my gaze. Two cows were con-tentedly breakfasting off them and only a portion of the scat at the band with the buttons remained. I did not know what to do and lay in bed waiting for the appearance of one of the inhabitants of the house. Presently Isabella's father went past my window. I hailed him and told him my plight. He laughed and said he would fetch me a pair of his trousers. Now I am tall and spare; my Mexican host was short and encomposely Mexican host was short and enormously fat; the trousers he produced me were patched in every direction with cloth of divers colors. Imagine my appearance when I put them on. The rest of the house had been told of my misfortune, so when I left the room I found all the men and girls in the place, including Isabella, awaiting my debut. I shall never forget the wild yells of laughter which greeted me and istruck me that which greeted me, and it struck me that I abella laughed louder than the rest. I made a rush for the stable, hastily sad-dled my horse and, without a word of farewell, rode off as hard as I could. I never went to see Isabella again. Nothing kills love so badly as ridicule.—Philadelphia Press.

AN OLD NEGRO'S OPINION .- A Michigander who took the White Sulphur Springs of Virginia a recent trip one day approached an aged negro who was loitering on the street and confidentially informed him that he had come to the spring to be cured of the habit of lying and he asked the old man's opinion of the chances for a cure. "How long has you bin in de habit of lyin', sah?" was the honest query.

"Fifty years."

"Lyin all de time?"
"Righ along, day after day."
"Big lies?"

"Yes—the worst old whoppers you ever heard. Give me your honest opin-ion now as to whether a course of baths ion now as to whether a course of baths will help me."

"Wall, sah," said the old negro, as he scratched his head, "'pears to me dat if you kin git de water hot nuff it might help you some, but de truble is dat in sweatin out the lies you may cook de body, an my sperience wid white men am dat I kin git long better wid a well man who lies dan wid a parbiled man who tells de tru!"

CINCINNATI TO CHARLESTON,

Consolidation of the French Broad Valley of North Carolina with Connecting Roads.

ASHEVILLE, August 2 .- A meeting of the Atlantic and French Broad Railroad Company of North Carolina was held here yesterday at the instance of Childs & Oliver, who contracted some time since to build the road, they having agreed to begin the work on September 1, 1882. There were present at the meeting Messrs. King, of Morristown, and Schofield, Campbell and others of New York, representing the contractors, and after a long and somewhat exciting discussion of the situation of affairs the directors signed the necessary papers looking to a consolidation of the Atlantic and French Broad route, the Cumberland Railway of Kentucky, the Morristown, Cumberland Gap and Ohio of Tennessee and the Morristown and Carolina Railway. These roads will form almost a continuous line from Cincinnati to Eastatoe Gap, where it connects with the projected Atlantic and French Broad Road of South Carolina. It is understood that the gentle men above named refused to enter into a written agreement to build the road under the existing contract, but pledged their word that the contract will be car satisfaction is expressed here on account of the lovseness with which the arrangements have been made, the capitalists who got the franchises and bonds not who got the Panchies and Jonds not being bound in any way except by their word that the road or their pledges will be carried out. Messrs. Scholield, Campbell & Co. left here to day by pri-yate conveyance for Brevard and will visit the counties in South Carolina interested in the matter for the purpose, it is understood, of effecting similar arrangements with the directors of the Atlantic and French Broad Road of South Carolina, It is understood that the parties effecting the consolidation propose to issue upon the credit of the combination and with the bonds they receive from the several companies ter million dollars of bonds, from the proceeds of which they promise to complete the line from Cincinnati to connect with the South Carolina roads. Women as Listeners,—Woman is primarily a being who listens. She has in these days not lost much of her orig-inal teachableaess, but she has not yet entirely discarded the appearance of being teachable. In her capacity for hearing without obeying lies her true power. As a talker she has her peers; as a listered tener she is unequaled. If, as a French writer says, the con rsation of women in society is like the straw in which china is packed-worth less in itself, but without which every thing would be broken—the listening of woman is what saves us from a Babel of tongues that would bring the sky about our ears in no time. Not that woman is always, or as a rule, unwilling to use her tongue (there is no need of being radical), but the listener who encourages you with eyes and expression and apprecia-tive laughter is a woman. She never lets her glance wander in an absent manner to be brought back to meet yours at an important point with an effort of which you are both keenly conscious. To whom are you tempted to relate bits of curious personal experience, the suffering caused by some random arrow of out rageous fortune, the fancies suggested by some book, some view, some journey some book, some view, some journey? To a clever, sympathetic woman, whose eyes brighten with interest or sadden with sympathy as she listens, who seeks to anticipate your next word with eager pleasure, and who, for some reason or other, just then, while you are in this confidential mood, has very few experiences or fancies of her own to communicate—only hints at them—inst enough. nicate—only hints at them—just enough to keep you in countenance.

Description of our Gin.

THE VAN WINKLE GIN is made with substantial iron frame, self-oiling boxes, brush boxes self-adjusting. Every precaution taken to prevent grit getting in the journals. The brushes are made with iron bound heads, and the sticks dovetailed in and driven in from the end, and any one of them can be taken out or replaced without interfering with the other sticks. We use no wire nor glue, and it is impossible for the sticks to fly off. The ribs are made of best chilled iron and most improved pattern, the saws of best English steel and needle pointed. Every part of the Gin has been gotten up with great care, with the especial idea of making a machine that will not get out of order, easily repaired if it should, always ready for work, and give the best general results. Any piece can be duplicated from our factory.

Its chief points of merits are: It takes very little room, is easily handled, and takes so little power; can be used on all kinds of powers—horse, water or steam. Ginning and packing can all go on at the same time, without interfering with the Gin. A two-inch belt will pack a 500 lb, bale of cotton. It saves its cost the first season in takes.

Read the following Testimonials:

Anderson, S. C., April 30, 1881.—Mr. John E. Peoples—Sir: The Steam Power Van Winkle Cotton Press bought from you last Fall has given entire satisfaction. I packed balos of cotton weighing 660 to 725 lbs. in five minutes with all ease, using a 4-inch belt and 25 lbs. steam. There did not seem any more strain on the Press than with a 450 lb. bale. For strength, durability, lightness of power, small quantity of steam required, economy of space, I deem it the King of all Cotton Presses; especially so as the low price at which it can be bought for puts it within reach of every man running a steam Gin. In fact, I would not be without it for twice its cost. I would advise alf my friends to buy one of Van Winkle's Steam Power Cotton Presses, as you will save its cost in labor in one year.

Anderson, S. C., May 19, 1881—John E. Peoples—Dear Sir: The Van Winkle Cotten Press bought of you last reason has given perfect satisfaction, and I consider it the best Power Press I have ever seen.

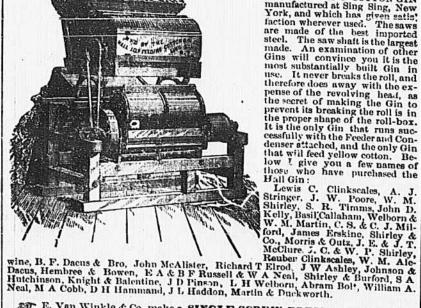

Anderson, S. C., May 16, 188!.—John E. Peoples—Dear Sir: The Van Winkle Steam Power Press we bought of you last Fall is the very Press adapted to the wants of the farmers of this County. It saves labor, takes but very little room, and very little power to run it up and down. We only work one hand with our Press. Can cheerfully recommend it to any one wishing to purchase a Press, as it will save its cost in a short time. We packed bales weighing over 600 lbs. with a 4-inch belt.

HALL'S SELF-FEEDING COTTON GIN.

June 8, 1832

This cut represents the HALL SELF-FEEDING COTTON GIN manufactured at Sing Sing, New York, and which has given satis; faction wherever used. The saws are made of the best imported steel. The saw shaft is the largest made. An examination of other Gins will convince you it is the most substantially built Gin in use. It never breaks the roll, and therefore does away with the expense of the revolving head, as the secret of making the roll is in to prevent its breaking the roll is in the proper shape of the roll-box. It is the only Gin that runs successfully with the Feeder and Condenser attached, and the only Gin that will feed yellow cotton. Below I give you a few names of those who have purchased the Hall Gin:

Engine for Sale. Engine for Sale.

I OFFER for sale my Engine, (an 8-horse Dry Steam, Taylor M'fg Co.,) it being too small for the increase I wish to make in my business. She is perfectly new, and is the smoothest and most noiseless running Engine in Anderson County. Call at my Mill on Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday and see her at work, and go home wishing you had her, for she can't be beat.
